

WHAT ARE WE DOING?

What anyone would do: fridge-racing. We empowered 30 Chicagoland teens to turn recycled fridges into race cars. They spent weeks building their cars and learning hands-on STEM skills, then faced off head-to-head.

It's just one of the many awesome things ComEd is doing to get underrepresented communities into STEM and to build a better Chicagoland.

WHY STEM?

Women hold only 24% of the science, technology, engineering and math jobs in the U.S. That simply is not good enough.

WHY COMED?

We've been keeping the lights on in Chicagoland for more than 100 years. But we aren't just a utility company ; we're an innovation company. And if we want to stay that way, we're going to need some new perspectives.
